A Group Photograph - Before, Now & In-Between

It took him seven years but Andrew Tatham eventually managed to find the relatives of all 46 men in this First World War group photograph.

As well as talking about the history and detective work involved, he will be showing his animated film that depicts all the men's family trees growing over 136 years, mixed in with photos of their families and historical time markers.

'It was the most moving experience I have ever had at the meeting over the last 22 years, engendering a deep sense of the brevity, but also the preciousness of individual human lives'
